The colonel has established his office in the Equitable building and is busy making contracts and forwarding merchandise to Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, where President Bogran is now recruiting and remodelling his army. Colonel Aguilera has gotten into trouble by endorsing the letter of Captain Dick Falkenberg, the famous Indian fighter, both in our western states and in the Riel rebellion in Canada. Falkenberg wanted to raise scouts in this country for Honduras and wrote Piesident Bogran, of Honduras, to that effect. BOSTON MERCHANTS' BANQUET. Ex-Governor Bullock Among the Guests.

The Speeches. Boston, January 30.—The annual banquet of the Boston Merchants' Association at the Boston, January 30.—The annual banquet of the Boston Merchants' Association at the Hotel Vendome this evening was second in brilliancy to that of last year, when ex-President Cleveland and the late Henry Grady were the principal speakers. Over 200 members and guests were present, among the latter being Sir Richard I. Cartwright, opposition leader of the Canadian parliament; Rufus B. Bullock, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; S. A. Whitfield, first assistant postmaster general, and J. W. Longley, attorney general of Nova Scotia; ex-Governors Ames and Brockett, Attorney General Hillsbery, Collector A. W. Beck; President John H. Inman, of the Richmond and Danville railway; President Norton, of the Louisville and Nashville; James Swann, of Inman, Swann & Co., New York; President John C. Calhoun, of the Central Railway and Banking Company of Georgía.

The decorations were elaborate but tasteful, and included graceful groupings of United States and English flags.

At 8:15 o'clock President Jonathan A. Lane called the assembly to order, and after referring briefly to last evening's sad event in New York, and to last year's famous banquet, said that political animosities were vanished from these gatherings, where none but the broadest themes commanded attention.

J. R. Leeson, chairman of the executive committee, then read letters of regret from Secretary of State Blaine, Governor Russell, Governor Campbell, of Ohio; ex-Governor N. P. Banks, of this state, and Goldwin Smith, of Toronto, and telegram of regret from the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Hon. Henry H. Sprague, president of the state senate, then spoke briefly, representing the commonwealth in the governor's absence, and was followed by Alderman Corinth for the city, Both expressed their desire for closer commercial intercourse and freer trade relations between Canada and the United States. Sir Richard L. Cartwright was introduced in Cartwright was introduced in a brief speech by President Lane as one who had studied reciprocity for years, and was the best Canadian authority on the subject. The Canadian leader was greeted with cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs, and was listened to with great attention, and his arguments for reciprocity were vigorously punctuated with applause.

DOCKERY'S STATEMENT.

Why He Desired Delay in Giving In His Testimony.

WASHINGT ON, January 30 .- Representative Dockery, of Missouri, appeared before the silver pool investigation committee today and said that inasmuch as he had when last on the said that inasmuch as he had when last on the stand given his testimony hastily and without sufficient deliberation, he desired briefly to restate the reason why he did not wish to testify till the day after the senatorial election in Pennsylvania. He read a written statement which was substantially as follows: "The force bill was at that time pending in the senate. I was desirous that it should be beaten. The attitude of nearly every senator in respect to that measure was very generally understood, except that of Senator Cameron. The election of his successor was to take place on Tuesday, and the cessor was to take place on Tuesday, and the committee was to have met the previous Saturday. It was not known that if Cameron was re-elected he would vote for the force bill, but his attitude of uncertainty led me to indulge the hope that he would vote against it.
Under these circumstances, there was nothing to induce me to desire that another republican cause of making public, at that juncture, any pri-vate business transaction of the senator of which I had information that might be entirely legitimate and proper, and which could, before an opportunity was afforded them of showing its entire propriety be used by his political enemies to his detriments, I had informa-

I had do knowledge that he was connected with any pool, nor had I any ne was connected with any pool, nor had I any information that would warrant me in conclusion as to the propriety or impropriety of a purchase made by him. I merely had information as to the simple fact that he had purchased silver. I believed it to be but justice to the senator that such fact should not be made public by me, when it might be used by his political opponents to his immediate injury without time or opportunity for him to prevent the same by explaining the facts and showing the propriety of the

"There was no agreement or understanding between Cameron and myself or any other person that my testimony should be delayed in consideration of or as an inducement for the senator to vote against the force bill. I was not requested by any person to delay my testimony, nor was any suggestion to that effect made to me by any person. I acted upon my own judgment, induced thereto solely by the facts and reasons I have stated."

An Executive Order. NEW YORK, January 30 .- Up to 10:30 o'clock the business of the subtreasury and custom house proceeded as usual, but the heads of departments were expecting to hear from Washington every moment, ordering a suspension of business. Flags were at half mast on all federal, municipal and public buildings, out of respect to the illustrious dead. On Fifth avenue, Madison, Lexington, as well as in adjoining streets, many draped flags were to be seen on private residences. On Broad-way and other business thoroughfares flags were also at halfmast.

The chamber of commerce will not take action on the death of the secretary until the regular meeting on Thursday next. The executive committee of the chamber will, however, represent that body at the funeral.

A special meeting of the board of trade and transportation has been called for this afternoon, when appropriate resolutions will be The special committee appointed evening to escort the remains to Washington assembled at 9:30 o'clock this morning, in Communipaw station of the Central railroad and awaited the arrival of the casket containing the remains of the secretary. ESCORTING THE REMAINS.

The body of Secretary Windom was car ried from the Fifth Avenue hotel, at 10:30 o'clock this morning, and conveyed in a hearse to the railroad depot at the foot of Liberty street. Secretary Tracy and Attorney General Miller and C. M. Hendley, private secretary of the dead statesman, attended the remains to Washington. A committee consisting of Captain Ambrose Snow, James B. Talcott, Ex-Judge Arnoux, Seth Thomas, Darwin R. James and General H. Willey, representing the board of trade and transportation at whose banquet Secretary Windom was stricken, accompanied the remains as a guard of honor.

From early morning the corridors of Fifth Avenue hotel bore an animated appearance, men of prominence coming and going constantly, and gathering in groups to silently discuss the sad occurrence of last night. Many desired to view the body, but few were admitted to the parlor on the Twenty-third street side of the building where it lay since

DEATH WAS INSTANTANEOUS.

Gentlemen who were near the secretary when he fell, generally concede that life left the body as soon as it toppled off the chair Secretary Tracy's first action was to feel for his colleague's pulse, but he could find none, and he whispered sadly in the ear of ex-Judge Arnoux that Mr. Windom was dead.

An examination of the body, made early this morning by Professor Schultz and Deputy Coroner W. T. Jenkes, confirmed the belief that death was instantaneous. The examination was a superficial one only, but this, to-gether with the theory of the case given them by Private Secretary Hendley, convinced them that death was from valvular disease of the

When the inquest was finished the body was placed in a casket of somber black and relieved by no ornamentation, the interior lined with a deep-colored copper, and all the body hidden from view, with the exception of the face, which showed plainly beneath the glass cover. The features exhibited no signs of pain, and the secretary, as he lay in his room where a single ray of sun sent its glimmer through a crevice in the window, looked as if he had sunk into a calm and peaceful

The Remains in Washington The president and members of his cabinet sembled at the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock for the purpose of receiving the remains of Secretary Windom, whom they last saw alive on Tues day at the regular meeting of the cabinet. The remains were brought in a special car attached to the regular train leaving Jersey City at 11:30 o'clock and arriving in Washington at 4:30 o'clock. It arrived promptly on time, and was received by a most distinguished assemblage, including nearly all the leading public officials in Washington. All the bureaus, divisions and branches of the treasury department were represented by their principal officials and many of the clerks and subordinate employes. These all assembled at the treasury department at 4 o'clock and proceeded to the railroad station in a body. The All the bureaus divisions and branches of the ceeded to the railroad station in a body. The presidential party consisted of the president, Vice President Morton, Secretary and Mrs. Blaine, Secretary Proctor, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Secretary Noble, Secretay Rusk, General Schofield and Solicitor General Taft. platform, and stood with heads uncovered while the casket containing the remains was removed from the car and placed on a stand prepared for it. It was then taken in charge by eight members of Company B of the Treasury National Guards, in uniform, under Lieutenant Moore, and borne slowly to the hearse through a passageway, of which the railroad train formed one side and a long line of people the other.

THE NEW YORK COMMITTEE, Attorney General Miller, Secretary Tracy, Solicitor General Hepburn and the committee of the New York board of trade and transportation, who accompanied the remains from New York, were among the first passenger to alight from the train. They immediately joined the group surrounding the president.

The committee was composed of the following named gentlemen: Messrs. Ambrose Snow, Darwin R. James, James Talcott, F. B. Thurber, W. H. Wiley, Seth Thomas and Norman S. Bentley.

When all was in readiness a procession was formed, and moved out of the station in the following order: The body bearers with the casket on their shoulders; the president and Mrs. Blaine; the vice president and secretary of state; the secretary of war land the postmaster general; Rev. Dr. Hamlin, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, and Secretary Rusk; the attorney general and the secretary of the interior, and General Schofield; Senator Paddock and Representative Dunnell; Assistant Secretary Soley and Solicitor General Taft; Assistant Secretary Spaulding and Treasurer Huston; First Comptroller Gilkerson and Second Auditor Patterson; Fourth Auditor Lynch, Commissioner Holliday, Register Rosecrans, Senator Washburn, and Assist-ister Rosecrans, Senator Washburn and Assistant Secretary Willets, and a long line of treasury officials, numbering several hundred.

AT THE RESIDENCE.

Carriages were provided for all and the cortege, headed by two mounted policomen, moved slowly by way of Pennsylvania avenue, Vermont avenue and Massachusetts avenue to the secretary's late residence, No. 1,422 Massachusetts avenue, where the stricken family was sadly waiting its arrival.

The president and all of his official family followed the remains into the house and waited in the back parlor, while the under-taker and his assistants placed the body in the front parlor and opened the top half of the lid, so as to expose to view the secretary's familiar features.

ATLANTA, GA., SATURDAY MORNING, JANUARY 31, 1891.

A LAST LOOK AT HIS FACE.

Mrs. Blaine remained with the president and was the only lady present when the latter and all the members of his cabinet and others who had accompanied the remains from the station, were ushered into the chamber of death and looked upon the cold, unmoved face of their distinguished associate.

The scene was a sad one and brought tears The scene was a sad one and brought tests to the eyes of several of the distinguished party. Nothing was said, however, and the party passed out of the house as quietly as they had entered it.

When the room was cleared, the bereaved widow and her daughter visited it in private.

THE AFFLICTED FAMILY.

While Mrs. Windom was kneeling over the casket, sobbing convulsively, the British minister appeared at the front door and left a message of condolence for the family.

The transfer of the remains from the station

o the house was made quietly, and with as little effort at display as possible. The great esteem felt for the deceased, however, was shown by the size and character of the crowd that turned out to honor his memory.

Mr. Windom's death will be specially deplored by the newspaper men. He was acplored by the newspaper men. He was accessible to them at all times, and seemed to take pleasure in assisting them in their work. He believed that the public had the right to know what the executive departments were doing, and he never declined reasonable reports for information concerning the business of the treasury department. The newspaper men, therefore, naturally regarded him as a good friend and will always cherish his memory. They, as well as all who had business with him, will testify to his gentleness of manner and kindness of heart. It is expected that an order will be issued from the white house tomorrow canceling all official receptions, and entertainment, for the remainder of the season.

THE EXIT OF INGALLS. RETIREMENT OF A PICTURESQUE

Partisan, but Fair, His Departure Is Regretted by Men of Both Parties WASHINGTON, January 30 .- John J. Ingalls was such a picturesque figure in the senate that senators and representatives of both parties are regretting his departure. Though an intense partisan, his political op-ponents have given him the credit for being fair, and a few days ago Senator Butler, of South Carolina, paid him a high compliment on that line. Mr. Ingalls, says a newspaper gossiper, is something of a fatalist, and has believed that in the end he would win. It did not seem possible to him that he could be beaten. He recognized the odds that existed against him, and that his only hope was in stampeding the alliance vote. He believed that he could do that, and his visit home was to supervise in person at close range the wires he had laid to that end. So very confident of success was he, indeed, that for a few days before he left here he declined a flattering offer from a famous lecture bureau for 200 nights next season on any topic or topics he himself might select.

It was suggested that the lecture on "Grover Cleveland" would draw well, treated from Mr. Ingalls's point of view. The offer was made through a distinguished gentleman, himself a lecturer and a personal friend of Mr. Ingalls. Mr. Ingalls heard of his friend's proposition, and then said in all seriousness: "But, my dear sir, I shall have no time to devote to-lect. recognized the odds that existed against him,

"No contingency will arise that will set me free," replied Mr. Ingalls, pleasantly, putting his hand on his friend's shoulder.
"You have been reading the newspapers, I see, about the situation in Kansas. Now, you mustn't be misled by partisan stories in the newspapers. I am going to be the new senator from Kansas. Bear that in mind, and come and see me again the next time you are in town."

The man here who has heard the news with The man here who has heard the news with the deepest regret is Mr. Plumb. The fact is a great tribute. The two mon have worked together in the closest intimacy, and if any man knows Mr. Ingalls intimately it is his colleague in the senate. Mr. Plumb, while not criticising his state or speaking disrespectfully of Mr. Pfeffer, says that the defeat of Mr. Ingalls is a distinct loss to the whole country.

By the way, it would be interesting to know what Ingalls is going to do, now that he is de-

He has received two offers, one from The Detroit Tribune, to take charge of that paper, and another from a lecture bureau, to deliver thirty lectures in twelve months, at times in cities to be named by him. While the unanimous voice of the committee is regarded as a victory for him, it means beyond this that the state of Alabama, whose railroad development for the past few years is marvelous, will continue her broad gauge and conservative policy towards corporations, avoiding the evils of unnecessary restrictions and hostile legislation which have been so destructive in some of the western states and illustrating in the new condition of parties, that there is no necessary conflict between the railroads and the alliance element, the latter being overwhelmingly in the asthe latter being overwhelmingly in the as-cendency in this legislature. Now Living in Macon-The Terrible Story of a Despised Woman's Vengeance Upon Her Betrayer

MACON, Ga., January 30 .- [Special.]-An Austrian countess is living in Macon on Fourth street, near the Brown house. She leads a life of ill repute. How she happened to come to Macon it is not necessary to mention here.

The countess is a married woman. Her husband, Joseph Monderer, lives in New York city. She ran away from him last August and came to Macon. She is a daughter of Count George, of the Hungarian house of Szirmay. Her maiden name is Jennie. She is only nineteen years old, a handsome blonde, not tall, but of trim figure. Her father's brother was chamberlain to the emperor of Austria, and her father, Count George, is still alive, and has large landed possessions in Austria. He and Jennie's mother separated, after a short married life. They were both of doubtful morality. She was fond of the races, and lost 500,000 florins of the count's at one

After the separation Count George took Jennie's governess for a mistress. The liason begat one child, who the count spirited away to some foundling institution, unknown to the

As Jennie fairly entered her teens her father concluded to put his house in order and discarded his mistress.

Jennie was sent to a convent to be educated, so she could take charge of the count's home. One day the governess went to the convent and told Jennie that her father was quite ill. and wanted to see her. The sisters permitted to leave the convent, but instead of going to her father's, governess enticed the girl away from Europe to America in a spirit of revenge, because Count George had secreted his child in a foundling asylum, and would not let its mother, the count's mistress, know where her child was. Jennie arrived in New York in July, 1888. She was then sixteen years old, and was beautiful to look upon. Very soon after arriving sile was seduced and rapidly fell into a life of shame.

From a palace to a bagnio-that is the story of the unfortunate Countess Virgie Szimay. Born a noblewoman in Hungary, and later a creature of shame in New York.

Throughout her career of shame in New York she was known only as "Jennie," and yet she is the daughter of one of the prohouses of Austro-Hungary. During her dis-ordered life in New York she met at one time a young man named Joseph Monderer, to whom she was married at the city hall by Alderman Flynn, May 6, 1890. While this couple were living in Stuvvesant street, Jennie suddenly disappeared. That was about August 1st. She went to the house during her husband's absence and took what clothes and valuables she wanted and came to Macon. One day, while living with her husband, a note came to her from a Macon "friend," and as she was absent, her 'husband opened it. Monderer asked Jennie who this Macon "friend" was. But she got angry; took the letter from Monderer and tore it up.

When Jennie's father learned that she had left the convent, he became greatly alarmed. He sought her all over Europe for over two years. He offered a reward of |50,000 florins for her recovery. This announcement was printed in a New York German newspaper subsequently, and after a long search of the ending in nothing, the Austrian at New York was notified. consul and she was finally located in New York. Count Szirmay was notified, and he came in post haste to New York, reaching there January 3d, but he learned that the girl had disappeared some months previous. He stayed in New York about a week, hunting her, but she was in Macon. At times he exhibited an almost feverish desire to see her and reclaim her at any cost, but finally he threw up his errand and returned to Europe, almost two weeks ago.

Last week the New York papers got on to the story, and Friday's and Saturday's World and Herald had full accounts of the entire matter. The papers published pictures of Jennie and asked the questson: "Where is It is reserved for THE CONSTITUTION to tell to the world that she is in Mac THE CONSTITUTION obtained a pointer in regard to her, and, after some inquiry, learned that the woman here was undoubtedly the countess, and was the same that the New countess, and was the same that the New York papers had written so much about. In fact, Jennie admits her identity, and, on being shown the picture in The New York World, readily admitted that it was she. In fact, the resemblance was so striking that she could not have denied her identity if she had de-desired. The foregoing story is practically desired. The foregoing story is practically Jennie's own version of her life. When told about her father's search for her, she burst into tears, and expressed a desire to return to him, and she asked that a telegram be sent to the Austrian consul at New York, to notify her father of her whereabouts. But when she read in The World of the 24th, that her father was disposed to leave her alone, after he had concluded that she was too derrayed to be taken back to his bosom and his heart, all her womanly pride and resentment mar-shaled ithemselves in rebellion, and she said she would not return to him and withdrew her request that the telegram be sent to the Austrian consul. It is thought, however, that she will yet relent and have the count notified, and try to lead a better life.

During her stay here she has gone by the name of Jennie Monderer. When asked what name should be signed to the telegram which she thought of sending to the telegram which she thought of sending to the Austrian consul, she replied with some spirit: "Sign my full name—Jennie Monderer Szirmay." On arriving at Macon, she refused to go to a regular bagnio and took a private house to herself. She is occasionally seen on the streets. She conducts herself in a modest manner in public. She is very intelligent. She speaks four different languages. Her English is a little broken. Jennie's hair is naturally very long and beautiful. Recently she took a notion that it was folling our and she shireled notion that it was falling out, and the sample. her flowing tresses, consequently the counters does not look quite, so beautiful as when first seen on the streets of Macon, far away from on that it was falling out, and she shingled

The entertainment given last evening by Miss Jackson in honor of her guest, Miss Mary Cobb, was unusually interesting and decidedly novel. It resembled a progressive euchre party, and the progression was from one game to another. The number of guests present was thirty-six and the games played at the nine tables were in the following order: Tiddledywinks, jack-stairs, flap-jack, pigs in clover, angling, symposium, lagomachy, Nellie Bly around the world, and whist. The prizes were very handsome, and the cards by which the respective positions and tables were decided were painted in water colors by Miss

"The Henrietta" the cleverest work of that brilliant author, Bronson Howard, will be presented at DeGive's opera house Monday and Tuesday evenings, February 2d and 3d, while we might add that in a sense of duty there is one that should not be overlooked, and that is the cleverest of comedians, Mr. Stuart Robson; the ideal of alliand a satisfier of all lovers of humor. Mr. Robson will be ably supported by an excellent company of players. The tour this present season with "The Henrietta" has surpassed that of all others. Mr. George S. Woodward playing the opposite part to Mr. Robson (Old Nick Van Alystyne) has received but the most favorable encomiums from the press of the country. "The Henrietta" the cleverest work of that of the country.

JAKE YOUNG IS FREE. THE CHAMPION DESPERADO 'OF SOUTH GEORGIA,

After Murdering His Constable and Defying the Law, Is Permitted to Go Abroad Among the Haunts of Men.

ALLAPAHA, Ga., January 30 — [Special.]— Jake Young, the most notorious outlaw in south Georgia, through the influence of rich relatives, is once more free from the restraints of jail life, and has resumed his career of terror in that section.

It took ten men to arrest him two years ago, and it was only after he was so wounded that he was helpless that his captors were enabled to go near him.

Jake Young was the justice of the peace for the district in which Tifton is located, and Arch Golden was his bailiff. Young issued a warrant for a negro, who was arrested by Golden, tried and convicted. A moneyed bond was offered, and one of the officers thought it was sufficient, but the other did not.

They were both game men, regular fighting stock, and the result of the quarrel was a fight, in which Golden proved best man. Young was not satisfied, and they fought again. was not satisfied, and they fought again. Young whipped. Then they fought for the odds, and Golden got the better of it. Young couldn't stand it, and armed himself and went after Golden's gore. He found him in Bowen's store, washing away the dust of the last battle. He was leaning over the wash-pan when Young entered, and, with drawn pistol, approached Golden. Golden said to Young: "Don't shoot, Jake."

Young commenced firing and fired five times, Two balls struck Golden in the center of the forehead, one ball pierced his heart and one ball entered his right breast. He was struck four times out of the five shots fired. Either of the four shots would have killed him. Golden fell dead to the floor. Young did not try to escape. He coolly went to a cir-did not try to escape. He coolly went to a cit-izen and said:

and not try to escape. He coolly went to a citizen and said:

"You had better send for the coroner. It seems that his services are needed."

Young then went home, washed and put on clean clothes and returned to Tifton to see if the coroner had come, and not seeing him he then went off, no attempt whatever being made to arrest him, as he was considered a great desperado, the fear of every one. This was on the 18th of May, 1889.

After that time until his arrest Young was never but once more than twenty-five miles from Tifton, spending his days skulking in the swamps, and in the night time he would either go home or to the house of some friend. A reward was offered by the governor, and his stamping ground has been more than once visited by detectives, but none of them ever dared "beard the lion." Young was not without his friends, and they were friends who would burn powder and they were friends who would burn powder the lion." Young was not without his friends, and they were friends who would burn powder in his defense.

He was kept pretty well posted about the movements of the officers, and made no great effort to get out of their reach.

About seven weeks after the killing Mr. J. W. Baker, of Titton, laid aside every other duty and put himself on Jake Young's trail. He lay out in the woods at night, and watched the haunts of the hunted man. Wherever Young went, Baker was seen to be in his wake. Like grim death he hung to his self-appointed task. On two different occasions he had Young located, and sent back for his friends. Some thirty or forty men had promised to rally to his call at the proper time. But each time the plot was given away, and the game escaped. Young knew that Baker was watching him, but he didn't care.

One Sunday Jake Young spent in a fodder loft six miles north of Tifton. His Nemesis was hard at hand, watchful and alert. That night Young went to the house of his concubine, and with her went to his own house near Tifton. His wife had left him and gone home to her people, but the bloodhounds of an avenging law had not forsaken or deserted him, and silently but relentlessly his pursuer followed in his tracks through the still watches of the night.

Monday and Monday night Jake spent at home with his paramour. He was warned that an attempt would be made to take him: He thought of Baker, laughed and paid no heed. But Baker was not to be laughed at. Wednesday he sent for his friends, and, while waiting for them purposely let Young see him in order to keep him in the house. When the posse arrived they had dwindled from forty to nine. They were J. W. Baker, Jack Golden, J. I. Clements, Joe Knight, Charlie Harper, Charlie Hicock, C. E. Hicock, Jesse Branch, William Branch and Ed Austin.

But the nine were all right. They surrounded the house and began to close in on it. Jake saw them coming, and with a spy glass surveyed the field. He saw three men one

Jake saw them coming, and with a spy glass surveyed the field. He saw three men one way, two another, and Baker another. Baker did not seem to be armed, and grabbing his Winchester, Young started to run for it. Baker headed him off, and cocking his Winchester, the desperade altered his course tell. chester the desperado altered his course tell

Just at this moment a Winchester from the other side of the house called a halt. Jack Golden, a son of the murdered man, who was 200 yards in the rear, sent a bullet into Young's back. It struck him under the right hip, and passing on the inside of his leg, made a pretty severe flesh wound.

"Don't shot me. I'll give up."

"Don't shot me. I'll give up."
Down went his gun and up went his hands!
"Go way from that gun."
"I can't, I'm shot in the hip," said Jake.
"Throw down your pistol."
"Put up your hands."
Jake couldn't do both, and so he stood with his hands waist high till Mr. Baker reached him. Young held up his coat while his pistol was taken from him—an ugly-looking 44 Smith & Wesson double-action. He was carried to the house, and after his wound was attended, he was carried to Tifton.

the nouse, and after his wound was attended, he was carried to Tifton.

Young declared that he did not blame young Golden for shooting him. Had he been in Golden's place he would have done the same thing, but he had rather it had been any other man in the crowd.

Wednesday night Young was brought to Valdosta, and at midnight was placed in jail. The Berrien officials did not believe their jail when seen in jail, he seemed to be cheerful enough, and, while suffering some pain, talked freely. He did not deny killing Golden, but did deny having any connection with the burning of the church at Tifton. This building was burned some time in 1888. It was rebuilt, and in August following it was fired again, but the fire was discovered and put out. The week before Young's arrest some one was seen firing the church again, and was shot at. Blood was found on the ground next day, but no trace of the incendiary. It was supposed by many that Young was at the bottom of the deed, but he denied it and also says it is untrue that he ever threatened the lives of Mr. H. H. Tift, Mr. J. I. Clements and others. He told Mr. Jim Clements to go to see his mother and cheer her up all he could, which Mr. Clements promised to do. It is said that the parting between Young and his mother was a very affecting scene, the one softest spot in his heart being love for his old mother. He seemed to feel that it was all up with him, and told his mother if he was hung that "it was no more than the Jews did with Christ."

that "it was no more than the Jews did with Christ."

Jake Young, the outlaw and desperado, whose face has been hidden from the walks of guiltless men, has a history that would read like a border story. He comes from a family that has made a reputation with the bowie and the revolver. His brother Rube was killed in Florida four years ago by his wife's relatives. Rube married a woman many years his senior. She was old and homely, but rich. As soon as Rube got hold of her money she died. Her relatives thought it too thin, and so Rube died too. When Jake Young was arrested he had Rube's pistol, found on his body after death, and with which it is said he had killed two men—one in Ware and one in Irwin.

Jake Young himself has killed five men, not counting the negroes. He had terrorized the country, and for many of his crimes he was never indicted. He was once indicted for murder and acquitted on the ground of self-defense. He shot the man through an auger hole, the bullet entering his back. He was elected justice of the peace at Tifton because no one dared run against him.

Such is the character of Young as it is given by his neighbors, and partly by his own acknowledgements.

Make Glad Hearts That Are Sad.

The youth of both sexes that find themselves in a state of ill-health at that interesting period when they reach manhood and womanhood, shouldn not let themselves despond. Away with gloomy melancholy! Life is before you, and with proper treatment and care perfect health will be your portion. A perfect man! A perfect woman! The noblest work of God! Keep clear of quack doctors and their pernicious medical literature. They seek to rob your purse and to gain this end would frighten the very life out of you. All you need at this time of life is an occasional use of that excellent strengthening medicine invented by that eminent physician Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., called Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION 52 A YEAR.

SENT TO ANY ADDRESS.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 31, 1891.

A Republican Tribute. "In the last ten years," says The Cincinnati Commercial, "Georgia has nearly doubled the value of its taxable property.

None of the older northern states can make as fine a showing." There seems to be no doubt that The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette has got hold of the facts of the case. They are wonderful, but they are by no means as extraordinary as the fact that our Cincinnati contemporary, which is a republican organ with a good deal of partisan vitality about it, should be willing to devote even a paragraph to advertising the prosperity of Georgia, or of the

Who says the south is not going ahead?

Usually, this sort of thing is not done on the republican programme, for the admission on the part of the organs of that party that the industrial development and prosperity of the south are worthy of special notice and comment, is fatal to the whole attitude of the organization which has fed on sectional hate and prejudice ever since the war; is fatal, in fact, to the whole theory and policy of that party as it now exists.

For twenty-five years the republican orators, historians and editors have been warning the world that the south is a good place for both immigrants and capital to keep away from. It has been advertised as a savage and bloody section, where the whites have preserved a barbaric temper, and where human life is held to be of small value. Drunken brawls and the occasional manifestations of the ruffian element that is common to all sections and all communities are advertised as typical. Foreigners desiring to settle here have been warned away, and northern people have been told that, if they desired to cast their fortunes with the southern people, they must either give up their republican opinions or become social out-

Who can doubt that this republican policy of slander has had and still has a tremendous effect in hindering the industrial develop ment of the south? Who can doubt that this policy is the result of a more sinister purpose than that which usually lurks behind partisan politics? Who can donbt, for instance, that behind the force bill there was and is a more serious intention than party success? It is impossible to separate the republican policy from a purpose to cripple the south and crush its business and commercial interests.

That this section has made any progress at all in the face of the slanders of the republican organs, which have been circulated over the face of the globe, is wonderful That its industrial development, in spite of the obstacles that have been thrown in the way, should surpass, during the past decade, that of any other section of the country dur ing any decade, is most marvelous.

We thank The Cincinnati Commercial for its kind little allusion to Georgia. What is true of this state is true of most of the other southern states, and the rational conclusion is that where there is such progress and prosperity, which is shared by the white and black alike, there must be peace and good will, instead of the bloody outrages and personal intimidation which the republican organs declare to exist at the south.

The New Exodus.

A curious feature of the last two years was the emigration of negroes from the Carolinas to Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas. In the two years it is estimated that not less than 100,000 negroes were shifted from the Piedmont region to the lower Mississippi valley.

At first the movement attracted only curious attention, but the persistence of it has caused serious reflection upon the cause. The matter has been a great deal discussed in the newspapers and somewhat in the magazines, and the result is a general conviction that the forces of nature have some thing to do with this readjustment of population. Professor N. S. Shaler, whose articles on "Man and Nature in America" have attracted wide attention, prophesies that this movement will go on until, practically, the whole of the negro population will be shifted from the Piedmont region to the lower Mississippi valley. His reasons for the prediction lie in the climatic conditions more favorable to the negro in the gulf

A new movement, altogether at variance with this programme, has begun. The Birmingham papers record the movement of large numbers of negroes from the mountainous region of North Alabama to Okla homa. These negroes go to a region much more exposed to the western blizzards than north Alabama. They go at the solicitation of emigrant agents, and with no knowledge of the country to which they are bound The movement is in an experimental stage If it should continue like that to the gulf states, it would break up Professor Shaler's theory. If it should prove a flasco, as it likely will, while the movement to the gulf states continues, it will confirm the professor's prediction.

This demonstration in climatic effects upon the negro will be watched with interest, for the result is of the greatest importance. If it should appear after the trial that the negro is bent southward, and southward only, we must face a condition which prets serious problems connected with the massing of the black race in one part of the

This has been a favorite prediction with some, and has given rise to such expressions as "a black republic." To one who has read the history of Hayti, such a conting does not arouse much enthusiasm. That is a country where the negro has had the educational contact with whites and was left, or rather threw h entirely upon his own resources. The history of the country since then, though furnishing occasional characters which excite admiration, presents, in the long run of years, a holy comment upon the capacity of the race for self-government.

Etiquette at the White House. Mr. Benjamin Harrison is evidently very angry about something, and he loses no occasion to manifest it. Recently two members of the Pennsylvania senate visited the white house. They sent in their cards and soon found themselves in the presence of the ridiculous little president. He was as cold as a boarding house stove.

"Am I to understand, gentlemen," he asked, "that Pennsylvania is still a republican state?" Then he turned his back on them, and before they could "pass the compliments of the season," he bade them goodday and disappeared behind the arras, less mportant than Hamlet's celebrated rat.

The incident which is freely told by the two state senators of Pennsylvania, has created considerable comment. Some say that the little man is angry because Cameron opposed the force bill, and this is the general belief; but it seems to be forgotten that Mr. Harrison is a Christian statesman, and highly moral man in every respect. No doubt he is angry with Quay for be ng such a republican rascal, and this feelng has perhaps been intensified by Cameron's connection with the silver pool scandal.

A truly good man can have a very hard time in the republican party.

The Play as a Political Factor. The interdiction of Sardou's play by the French government is incomprehensible to Americans. Why, in a free country, a play, dealing with events of a hundred years ago, cannot be permitted to go on without danger to the government, is something we cannot clearly see. It is one of those idiosyncrasies of the Gallic blood which every now and then amaze the rest of the world while they startle a French ministry almost out of its wits. 7

Last year the escapades of a youngster, who happens to be the son of the Comte de Paris, afforded an opportunity for similar exhibition of unrest on the part of the government, and excitability on the part of the populace. This time a few people hiss a play, and as many more insist that it shall go on, and the government steps in and suppresses it.

It is true that the memories of the French revolution are deep and terrible, but they have been recalled and discussed in the pub lic prints of Paris a thousand times. When however, a suggestive play is put on the stage where the satire is no longer in cold type, but falls from the lips of human beings, typical of the revolutionary time, the great-grandsons of that time take up the quarrel where their great-grandfathers left off and begin either to hiss or to howl for the play. But this lingering feeling, reminiscent of the revolution, is not so surprising as the government's action. A play criticising the fathers of the American revolution might meet with hisses in this country, but it would not need to be suppressed. It would die a natural and ignominious death. The government which would suppress it would immediately be charged with despotism There is nothing so odious in this country as press censorship or an abridgement of the eedom of speech.

Like its action in the case of the young count last year, this action of the French government is discouraging to the friends of the republic. It is a melancholy comment on the capacity of the French for self-government that their ministers should be perpetually afraid of a shadow.

Aside from this, the "Thermidor" incilent of the Theatre Francais is exceedingly suggestive. It opens up a new field for ambitious literary talent. The possibility of securing fame and political influence at once is intoxicating. Having plastered over the earth with fiction until we are confronted by a wilderness of books by people who, like the geese, eat all before and poison all be hind them, the literary sensationalists have shocked the public to death and are looking about for what they shall do to revive it Now, with one accord, they will exclaim in the language of the melancholy Dane, "The play! the play's the thing!"

THE REPUBLICAN criticism of Senator Cameron is not genuine. He was honest enough to oppose the force bill.

IF THE republicans want an extra session congress they can be accommodated. The democrats have a great work to do, and they should begin early.

WHEN SENATOR INGALLS'S chickens car nome to roost they lit right on top of him.

MR. CARLISLE Writes of "The Vanishing surplus." His article was probably prepared months ago. The surplus has already van ished, and in its place is a hole big enough to put the republican party in.

LET US hope that Senator Ingalls will not go back and vote for the force bill. Do you observe that Brother Blaine is "laying low and saying nothing?" THE RIDICULOUS little president is said to be in a great rage over the defeat. We advise him to go to press more frequently with his family prayers, and try to live so as to become at least an imitation of a good man. IT is said that Quay proposes to reply to the attacks that have been made on him. On this it may be remarked that Quay needs no vindication with the republicans, and that his statement comes too late to convince people who care for honesty. MR. INGALLS can now edit a newspaper. EDITORIAL COMMENT.

-Savannah News: Just what the significan of Mayor Grant's trip south is remains to be seen.
It may be political, and it may not be. The New Tuesday's Mail and Express said: "If reports be true, Mayor Hugh J. Grant, supposed to be in the south on a vacation, is in reality still in New York. This report ulated about the city hall today, and gav rise to much lively gossip. The report emanated from an apparently reliable source. Mayor Grant was said to have gone south on Sunday evening with Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy, and John D. Exciting Times in 1884. Jay Gould will visit Atlanta soon, and the Atlanta public would like to know a little more about him. A gentleman personally acquainted with Mr. Gould, gives some very interesting points

"Jay Gould is a scholar," said my informant. 'He has one of the finest private libraries in the United States, very much like the Lennox library. "He has a remarkable eye. It is a black eye, rather small, but very bright. When he meets you in his office his manner is charming. I don't know what it is, but there is indefinable attraction. He just like his picture, and his beard is inclined to stick out forward. He has a very narrow head in front and when he sits with his head leaning back he look like a dead man. You can see just how he will look when he is laid out in his coffin. "What would a stranger think if he Gould on the street? The stranger would not notice him. He is a small man, plainly dressed and one whom you would not notice in 'Three years ago when James Gordon Bennett began thumping him in The Herald, Mr. Gould got cross over it and wrote several letters in reply. They were published in The Herald, and with each letter Mr. Bennett would print an editorial in reply. So it went on through a series, each man charging the other with a special line of sins from which he claimed exemption. Gould charged Bennet with drunkenness and licentious Bennett did not deny, but for answer he charged Gould with being dishonest "To this charge Gould's reply was to make further charges of immorality in Bennett's private character. So they went on, each man thanking God that he was not the kind of sir

When Cleveland was elected The Tribune declared that Blaine was elected, and The Herald went into hysterics and said that Jay Gould had instructed the Western Union operators to falsify the returns so as to show Blaine's election While this was absurd and impossible, it stirred up the people, and a crowd gathered at The Herald office with the intention of going to Gould's residence to demolish it. It was then that Morosini knocked a man down be cause he wanted to kill Gould. It was a few days after that when Gould sent a telegram to Cleveland

EDWARD ATKINSON

On the Free Coinage of Silver-Cause of the . Recent Stringency. WASHINGTON, January 30 .- Silver hearings were continued by the house coinage commit-tee today. Director Lerch, of the mint, was questioned by members of the committee The effect of the passage of the free coinage bill, he thought, would be that foreign nation having stocks of silver on hand would ship it here. But before these shipments could arrite, the alarm would be so great that gold would be withdrawn from the treasure gold would be withdrawn from the treasury and hoarded by the banks so that the govern-ment would have no gold with which to pay for silver. The effect of free coinage would be a contraction of the currency, but how long this would last he could not tell.

Edward Atkinson was then given a hearing. He said that credit depended not upon the quantity of money, but the quality. In the business of the world credit was a factor to an extent, twenty or thirty times as great as that of actual money. He declared that free silver coinage would stop credit, which would stop business, as business had already been re-stricted very largely by the fear of such legis-

Mr. Atkinson gave the following as his view of the recent financial flurry:

The pinch was not due to an actual scarcity of money, but to a scarcity of money in the right place; to a reduction of bank reserves, that obliged the banks to restrict credit. Now, right place; that obliged the banks to restrict credit. Now, with no more actual money in circulation than six weeks ago, there is an abundance of money and an abundance of credit. He declared to his certain knowledge that since the present free silver bill was passed by the senate, large his certain knowledge that since the present free silver bill was passed by the senate, large transactions, amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, had been summarily suspended, after being well under way.

As soon as Mr. Atkinson finished, Mr. Bland, saying that these statements were the same that he had heard for years, moved to fix a day for a final vote, which motion Mr. Vaux moved to amend by fixing Tuesday as the next meeting day of the commistee.

Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, immediately warmly that the committee had never had any hearings on the question of free coinage, and the free silver men immediately locked horns with him on this statement. Mr. Walker kept the floor for five minutes or more, and when an attempt was made to vote on the Vaux motion, he made the point of order that 12 o'clock had arrived, to which Mr. Williams, of Illinois, retorted with the remark that Mr. Valker had used up all the time necessary for a vote.

THIRTY MILLIONS FOR THE NAVY nother Big Cruiser-The United States Getting Faster Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, January 30.—The naval appropriation bill, aggregating $31,111,634, which was carried through the house on final passage Monday afternoon, authorizes the construction of one additional cruiser of about 7,500 tons, costing, exclusive of armament, $2,750,000, to be similar to cruiser No. 12, authorized last year, having three propellers and a minimum year, having three propellers and a minimum speed of twenty-one knots. The bill also re-peats the authorization of the so-called cruising Monitor of the act of March 12, 1889, to cost not exceeding $1,500,000.

Four millions are appropriated for finding the armor and armament of vessels under construction, and over $12,000,000 under the bureaus of construction and steam machinery to carry on the work upon all the vessels authorized, upon which the expenditures reach their maximum during the fiscal year covered by the bill. The estimates show that these expenditures will fall off about onethat these expenditures will fall off about one half during the following fiscal year, owing t

THE BUSINESS REPORT. Review of Trade for the Past Week by

Dun & Co.

New York, January 30.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s unprecedented in volume and satisfactory in character. Measured by the clearing house returns, trade exceeds that of a year ago by about 2½ per cent in amount, and that means the vol-ume of business is larger than in any other year at this season. The tone in commercial circles throughout the country is hopeful, and money markets are now comparatively easy at nearly all points.

The uncertainty regarding the monetary future causes some hesitations, especially as to new undertaking, but there is underneath an abiding confidence that in some way the fertile genius of the peopls and the measureless resources of the country will meet every difficulty. So strong is this feeling that it is often hard to realize that the pressure and anxiety of November and December lasted until within thirty days. But there are some grounds for caution still.

IN DRY GOODS.

The dry goods trade is, on the whole, very satis factory for the season, and while buying is con servative both in cotton and woolens, and price are low enough to embarrass some branches of production, trade is clearly on a more healthy basis, as well as larger in volume, than it was a

a year ago.

The increasing demand for wool, though still confined to actual needs for consumption, proves that current prices, low as they are, do not arrest production. production.

Trade in boots and shoes and leather is somewhat retarded by the monetary uncertainty.

In the management and sale of machinery, implements and tools, business seems to be larger than ever, and while copper, tin and lead are all a shade lower for the week, the consumption of each is very box. THE IRON AND STEEL TRADE.

The embarrassment in iron and steel manufac-ture trade is now clearly perceived to be the result of the marked shrinkage in demands for con sumption. Bar iron is very dull; the demand for plates is very much smaller than was expected plates is very much smaller than was expected, and for sheets irregular and unsatisfying, while structural iron is dull and lower. There is very little doing in rails at the price now nominally asked, and there is much pressure to sell pig iron, Virginia competing in Pennsylvania markets, and southern No. 2 being offered at $14.50, against $15.25 for Lehigh; No. 1 northern is quoted here at $16.75, and unsold stocks of pig iron are now said to be 400,000 tons more than a year ago.

Accounts from southern cities indicate only a fair trade, with an improvement at Atlanta, and a slight improvement at Jacksonville, but increasing receipts and lower prices for cotton at New ng receipts and lower prices for cotton at Orleans. Philadelphia reports a good deman

EFFECT OF WINDOM'S DEATH. There is encouragement in the dry goods and shoe trades, and improvement in paper, because of the government award to Pennsylvania makers. FORCE BILL ECHOES

From The New York Times. Mr. Harrison, Mr. Hoar, Mr. Edmunds and the active advocates of the force bill seem to have accepted the situation, and there is very little chance that that untimely and unfortunate proposition will again be brought before the senate. The blov dealt to it by the votes of the republican senator on Monday must, therefore, be regarded as fatal to the last of what may be called the "war meas-ures," and with its disappearance closes one of the most important eras in the history of the Ameri-can republic. From The Philadelphia Times.

We hope that some fool will introduce a resolu tion in the legislature censuring Senator Cameron or calling upon him to resign. That would give the sensible members of both branches an oppor-tunity to pull themselves together and exhibit their manhood. No Philadelphia senator or rep-resentative could vote for such a resolution with-out offending an overwhelming majority of the republican business men, and without inviting criticism of an overwhelming majority of the re-publican newspapers of this city. From The Chicago News.

The nation rejoices with Mr. Dana that the force bill is no longer a menace to liberty and the peace of the country. Its passage would probably have proved a greater evil in promoting sectional ism and bitterness of feeling that any provocation since the dark days of the war. From The Nashville America

The copy before us is an extra, and has three columns printed on both sides giving a complete muster roll of the Fifteenth regiment Georgia Volunteers. This takes up nearly all the space in the extra, the remainder being devoted to news of the war and rumors which were current. THE CLEMENCEAU CASE.

The much cussed and discussed "Clemenceau The opera house was comfortably filled with an audience largely masculine, and, at times, in-clined to be obstreperous. It was just such an audience as one had a right to expect from the character of the advertising which the play has received, but it was not the sort of an audience that the play deserved, for, in a word, "The Clemenceau Case" isn't exactly as bad as it has been painted.

"I don't say is'nt as bad as it is painted; but I do say that the one scene which has given it at once its life and its bad name, is in reality far different from the scene as it has been painted in the newspapers.

So much in introduction. The play, as every-body knows, is by Dumas. It is the story of the life of a thoroughly bad and thoroughly heartless woman, told in a way calculated to make the crimes of which she is guilty revolting. There is little in the text that could be objected to. Twenty standard plays are worse in this respect—"Camille" certainly, and "La Tosca," and for that matter, "Josephine," which we have all admired so much this week. There is hardly a sentence in "The Clemenceau Case" as broad—if the term in this sense is proper—as any one of a hundred in "Josephine." It is "Frenchy" to be sure: and, as I have said, the story in the moral it teaches is revolting. Clara Morris and Jeffreys Lewis, Bernhardt and even Rhea are seen in such plays, and only the moral they teach is talked about. "La Tosca" is tentimes as bad as "The Clemenceau Case." Iza is not the tender-hearted woman Camille 18, yet ten times as bad as "The Clemenceau Case." Iza is not the tender-hearted woman Camilie is, yet Ira's sin' is no greater. Then why all this hue and cry over "The Clemenceau Case?" But—it is suggested—the model scene? Well, the model scene is dainty, artistic, beautiful. There is nothing vulgar, nothing immoral in it. A beautiful woman stands for about five seconds as a model for her busband, a sculptor. The costume she wears—for she does wear a costume—is much like that of that dainty bit of statuary, "The Diver." Fifty chorus girls on DeGive's stage this year have worn costumes more scanty than this —and they were not indecently clad (for chorus girls), at that. It is really a very pretty scene. The only possible objection to it is in the color of the tights the woman wears, and it requires a very wide stretch of the imagination to see anything objectionable in that.

Now it is perhaps the truth that the play would never have had serious consideration from managers had it not been for this studio scene. And yet the last three acts especially are full of strong scenes and dramatic situations, which give capable people ample scope for the display of their talents. The final scene, where the husband's manhood triumphs over the fascination the woman exercises over him, and he kills his wanton wife, is one of the strongest in any modern drama.

The play is in thoroughly capable hands. Mrs. Laura Biggar, as the Iza, is both a beautiful woman and an excellent actress who is fully equal to the requirements of the role. Mr. Welles who has the rather thankless part of the husband does good work. He is pleasantly remembered here in the equally thankless role of Romeo to Margaret Mather's very vigorous Juliet. Mr. Tordan has in Constantin the best part in the play and filled it acceptably. Miss Beaman, too, does excellently.

Constantin the best part in the play and filled it acceptably. Miss Beaman, too, does excellently. The other members of the company are thoroughly capable.

The "Clemenceau Case" will be repeated this afternoon and tonight.

GEORGE THEASHER'S STORY. George Thrasher tells an interesting story of Orange Davis's trip to Washington, and Thrasher says that Davis has just returned from his second trip to Washington. When he went there the first time he had no experihe went there the first time he had no experience in dealing with a steamship company, and $1,056 in his pocket, and his business there was to get the tickets. The company had no tickets on hand, and they asked him to pay the money over and wait for the tickets, as they were not ready then to furnish them.

Davis shook his head and said, "No, I can't Davis shook his head and said, "No, I can't let the money go without the tickets."

The company said: "We have no steamships ready to carry you people, and so if we give you the tickets you will have to rent a steamship some whereelse."

So Davis and Thomas Peek, the slicktongued Georgia agent, and Mr. Moss and umba, f The Constitution last week represented the death of Rev. James S. White, a Presbyterian ongued Georgia agent, and Mr. Moss and everal others went down and looked at the duty and as much rest as might be needed were given him. The windmill used to raise water to a tank near his house frequently annoyed him in his sleepless condition. The supposition is that when he arose at a dead hour of night and went out, it was with the intention of stopping the windmill. The top of the tank had been left open to let out the gas, and no one who knows the facts doubts that, as Mr. White attempted to catch the link, not knowing that the tank door was open, by a misstep he fell into the tank with its ten feet of water, where his body was next morning found. He was one of the purest of men and of ministers. His funeral was the largest ever known in that community, being attended by an entire population, in the midst of which this kind-hearted genial and able man had spent his entire life of something like fifty years.

"If you want Jessie K. Belle you must pay $300 to secure the Jessie K. Belle," said Mr. Moss. So Davis paid over $500 tto secure the ship. "Why not let the Jessie K. Belle go down to Savannah and get the colored emigrants and carry them to Africa," said Davis.
"Oh no," said Mr. Moss, "Jessie must go the other way and when Jessie returns we will send you word and Jessie will meet you at Savannah, and if anything should occur we will refund your money."

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Exchange.

NEW YORK, January 30.—While the death of Sec NEW YORK, January 30.—While the death of Secretary Windom produced genuine sorrow in Wall street today, it had no apparent influence upon speculation, and can have no effect upon the financial situation, as the government is engaged at present with routine business only. The shelving of the free coinage bill has given some impetus to the market, but operators are still waiting for developments in regard to the western railroad situation, and are not inclined to trust their money in new speculative enterprises until after the adjournment of congress. The market, however, at least during the morning hours today, was broader and stronger than usual of late, to which utterances by Secretary Windom, last evening, aided, but there was again an evident support given in Gould stock, and Vanderbill's Lake Shore being especially prominent in the rise, being helped by rumors of increasing earnings. There was at the same time excellent buying of Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, and Wheeling and Lako Erie, all of which were conspicuous for advances scored in early dealings. The market showed from day to day an evident disposition to cut away from such stocks as Illinois Central, Rock Island, and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, which are persistently weak, and whose business is suffering from shortage in last year's corn crop. Burlington, in fact, continues to be the weakest spot in the market, and whole there is some buying in it, traders and bears have made it a favorite for their attacks. Northern Pacific became very weak late in the day, and this, in spite of the publication of the dispatch which declared that it had been decided to make the next dividend at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. The story had so much the appearance of being put out to sell stock upon, that there was a rush to realize on the profits of the late rise, and a material loss resulted in the short time remaining to do business in. This decline was also hastened by rumors that by large treasury absorbtions during the week, the bank statement would show material loss in reserve. This, however, could be easily withstood, as the banks have been unable to place even portions of funds which unable to place even portions of funds which accumulated in their vaults for the past four

NEW YORK, January 30.—Europe was not a feature in today's market, the main trading being in Union Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the former, which was strong on the story that earnings for the first three weeks in January show an increase of $300,000 over last year, and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy weak on the December statement, showing a large decrease. The grangers generally were weak on the oft repeated story of the decrease of the scene crop and the poor receipts in Chicago. The were weak on the off repeated story of the decrease of the corn crop and the poor receipts in Chicago. The Gould people are trying to lift prices and their brokers are hard at work. If Europe would buy any amount of stocks it would be an easy matter to rally the market, but the foreigners are trying to scalp just as hard as our room traders. CAHN & CO.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Hass. NEW YORK, January 33.—Liverpool was reported and higher this morning in consequence of the pubation of Mr. Ellison's figures, which estimate the lication of Mr. Eilison's figures, which estimate the consumption of Europe, including England and the continent, at nearly 10,000 bales of 400 pounds each per week in excess of the consumption last year. We naturally cannot criticipe Mr. Eilison with the data that is at our command. We do, however, feel skeptical on the point of his rather extraordinary increase, and are rather disposed to accept the same with some caution. The effect of such a fact as the foregoing, it is true, has not been large nor if accordance with the importance of such a state of affig. Ts. Herethe market opened quiet at unchanged prices, and the feeling was not particularof such a state of affi 'rs. Here the market opened quiet at unchanged prices, and the feeling was not particularly bullish at any tim. Itil toward the afternoon, when a very prominent hort started in to cover and the large purchases for, his account caused an improvement in values which was maintained up to the last, the gain for the dr. being about 6 points throughout the list. Had it not been for the foreign news the extraordinary movement on this side for the past week would undoubtedly, lave had a very depressing effect, for we cannot, in our experience, recall anything like the same in the month of January in the past. The receipts at the ports for the week will be about 19,000 bales, the interior about 50,000 bales and the plantation movement about 181,000 bales, as compared with 123,000 bales last year. These figures are almost too significant to need any comment. As we have these past few days, we are now, inclined to advocate the covering of shorts on soft spots, for we expect every now and then fair rallies on which it will be opportune to resell again. We look for no serious dectine, but believe in the end that, without exception, the market will slowly sag off. February notices continue to circulate quite freely, but have no effect on the market being generically, but have no effect on the market being generically. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, January 30.— [Special.] — Liverpool failed to maintain the advance of yesterday today despite the estimate of Mr. Ellison, made public today, as the advance yesterday was due to the buying of those who had received an intimation that his annual review would be of a bullish character. His estimate of the weekly consumption is now 171,000 bales per week, against 161,000 bales last year. Spinners' stocks in Great Britain are now 204,000 bales, against 193,000 bales, and on the continent 219,000 bales, against 193,000 bales hast year. This increase in consumption makes the consumption in Great Britain 84,000 bales per week, and on the continent 87,000 bales. The publication of this estimate brought some covering, but the trade do not credit Mr. Ellison's sudden increase in consumption in view of the bad reports coming to hand from Manchester and the continent. 'A reaction from the sharp decline has been looked for as natural, though the movement of the corp is on so large a scale that any permanent advance is considered doubtful. The permanent advance is considered doubtful. The pots at the ports will reach 192,000 bales, against 00 bales has year, and that at the interior towns 1 bales, against 147,000 bales last year, while the total amount of about 200,000 bushels were received. This, together with reports of a cold wave in Kansas, was the cause of the buying by a few local scalpers, who sold it at the opening, giving our market a strong appearance for a few moments. It soon became evident that holders who had a handsome profit were free sellers, also one or two local traders sold quite heavily, causing, with the exception of a few reactions, a declining market to 5°C, at which point there were large buythg orders, partly by parties who sold early in the day and partly by parties buying against privileges. This caused a slight reaction, the market closing about \(\frac{7}{16} \text{elower} \) the ower than yesterday, with indications of lower prices for tomorrow. Geo. W. Parrott, President. | C. A. FOR MEN

AMONG THE RAILROADS.

THE MONON MAY RE-ESTABLISH ITS FREIGHT AGENCY.

ral Information of Interest to Railroad Men Throughout this Section of the South.

The Monon people are talking of re-establishing their freight agency recently abolished on the death of Agent McGaughey. The office was formerly situated in Chattanooga, and in case it is re-established either Chatta-nooga or Atlanta will be the headquarters. The Chattanooga papers assert that Mr. M. K. Northern, late Florida agent of the Queen and Crescent at Jacksonville, and Mr. S. R. Johnston, late contracting freight agent in this city for the same road, are candidates for the sition. If that is a fact, it is hoped Mr. Johnston will get it. No better man could be selected for the place, as in addition to his ability, he is courteous to every body, and that goes a long way toward obtain ing big freights for long hauls. Mr. Johnston has a host of ends here who wish him success in obtaining the appointment.

At last accounts Mr. Eben Lardon, resident engineer of the Western and Atlantic road. had considerably improved since his removal to his home in Owensboro, Ky. It was thought pneumonia had a hold on his, but he seems to have escaped the dread disease.

There is some commotion along the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad among the operators over the fact that Major Huger is sending out messages inquiring if they belong to the Order of Railway Telegraphers. His intention in so doing has not been learned.

I Uncle Sam is taking steps to prevent the illegal carrying of mail by the railroads. Under the law, baggage agents and conductors of the different roads are permitted to carry mail pertaining to the business of the company to points along its line, but it cannot be transferred to any other road. The punishment for a violation of the law is a $50 fine for the employe and $100 fine for the rallroad company for each offense.

A span of the iron bridge in process of construction across the Savannah river, has fallen into the river. It will cause a delay of one month in the completion of the work.

Let a bill affecting railroads in any shape or form be introduced in either house, and in twenty-four hours both halls are crowded with lobbyists, who seek to instruct, to persuade and bribe Tennessee legislators into becoming the slaves and tools of corporations instead of performing their duties as public officials and as servants of the people. The railroads leave no stone unturned to carry their point. They distribute free passes promiscuously, they get up free expeditions to Washington and New Orleans, and they employ other means on any members whom they think will permit their honor to be tampered with, or who change their views and their votes for a consideration The members of the legislature should give a cold shoulder to those lobbyists and not heed them. They have no care for the state or her welfare; their only purpose is to promote the interest of the railroads. They are perfectly willing to make the people of Tennessee slaves to a railroad. The railroads are creatures of the state and should be subservient to the state, not the state to the railroad. Beware of the lobbyist.—[Nashville Herald.

The conference which has been going on for week between General Manager Metcalfe, of he Louisville and Nashville coad, and a comtee of the dissatisfied firen en and engineers of the road has ended with a settlement satisfactory to both sides. The lengthy time was occupied in discussing each system of the road separately. As a general thing, railroads have a uniform rate of pay, and that system has prevailed on the Louisville and Nashville. The engineers and firemen were displeased with this. Some were benefited by this while others were not, and the men wished to have some uniformity about the ray. uniformity about the pay.

The Albany, Florida and Northern railroad will be completed this week between Cordele and Albany, and within the next ten days a regular schedule will be put on. This gives to Cordele three fine railroads, and in consequence of the early completion of this new road, real estate in Cordele is beginning to

The Chattanooga Southern will be open for traffic from Chattanooga to Gadsden not later than April 15th. The entire roadbed has been graded and track-laying continues on the lower end. Two gangs, one from Gadsden and the other from Pigeon mountain tunnel, are working towards each other. The line from Chattanooga to the tunnel is in operation, two trains running each way daily. The tunnel is nearly finished, only about one-fourth of the entire distance remaining to be completed.

The indications are that the Big Four will revive the freight position abolished at the death of the incumbent, Mr. E. W. McGaughey. The headquarters of the office will either be in Chattanooga, as formerly, or in Atlanta. The probability, however, is that it will be established in Atlanta. Mr. M. K. Northam, formerly traveling freight agent of the Queen and Crescent at Jacksonville, and Mr. S. R. Johnston, formerly contracting agent in this city for the Queen and Crescent, are said to be among the several applicants for the position, but no decision has yet been reached in the matter.

No better man for the place could be selected than Mr. Johnston. He is courteous to everybody, and very popular with the whole business section of Atlanta. He has a host of friends here who wish him success.

The Savannah, Americus and Montgomery road is the liveliest five-year-old baby, not only in Georgia, but in the entire country. The earnings of the road from July 1, 1890, to January 1, 1891, were $259,425, an increase over the corresponding period of the year before of $160,181. The operating expenses from July 1, 1890, to January 1, 1891, were $139,861, an increase over the corresponding previous period of $40,617.

A train on the Atlanta and Florida railroad is seldom seen in Fort Valley and from this fact many of our people forget there is such a road many of our people forget there is such a road running into our town. All the same they are still coming here and doing a great deal of good through freight business. But the time of trains here is in the night, consequently they are never seen by our people. We wish the authorities of this road could arrange so that their trains could remain nere longer each trip, so that four people might be reminded that Fort V liev still has the Atlanta and Florida railroad, at it hat the trains do in fact come here. Some of our people believe this road has suspended b siness on account of their midnight schedule.—Fort Valley Leader.

The earnings of the Louisville and Nashville system for the third week of January were $366, an increase over the corresponding period last year of $20,953.

Has any one yet heard that the Louisville and Mashville railroad has given up any of its plans and Projects in Alabama or Georgia, because in these states it is subject to a commission? Not yet. The contrary is the fact. Instead of curtailing its operations, it is seeking to extend them in both States.—Nashville Herald.

The Herald is adjusting the appointment of a The Herald is agitating the appointment of a commission in Tennessee and is right. It is bound to come sooner or later.

It is now officially announced that the Georgia Pacific will not begin to run trains between Greenville, Miss., and Huntington, Miss., on February 1st, as previously announced. The Louisville, New Orleans and Texas railway is not quite ready with transfer arrangements at Huntington for the large volume of traffic to be exchanged there via Arkansas City, between the Richmond and Danville and the Missouri Pacific systems, and therefore the opening of this route is deferred until these transfer facilities can be adequately horeased and further notice thereof has been given.

The organization of the Seaboa d Construction Company, which is to build the Middle Georgia and Atlantic into Savannah, is a follows: President, Mike Brown; vice preside the Middle Georgia and Garant, Secretary and treasurer, Is ac G. Haas; dissours, J. P. Williams, Edward Karow, Colonel

A DRUMMER'S BANK.

E. C. Machen, Colonel William Garrard, William Kehoe, Isaac G. Haas, of Savannah; hike Brown, of Barmwell, S. C.; General A. F. Granger, of Philadelphia and W. C. Clark, of Covington, Ga. It was intended at first to capitalize the company at $250,000, but the amount was found to have been so largely over-subscribed that the meeting at once voted to increase the capital to $500,000, in order to accommodate applications that were made for the stock from northern partles. The list of subscribers showed the names of many of Savannah's most substantial business men, besides bankers of Philadelphia, Chattanooga and Covington.

The organization of the Seaboard company settles definitely the building of the Middle Georgia and Atlantic, giving Savannah another route through Atlanta to the west. The majority of the board of directors being Savannah men practically keeps the control at home and makes that company a Savannah institution.

At the annual meeting of the Georgia and Florida Construction Company, held recently in Valdosta, the following directors were chosen by acclamation for the ensuing year: W. S. Jordan, of Madison; J. W. West, of Madison; J. R. Young, of Savannah; J. B. Withers, of Savannah; J. M. Wilkinson, T. G. Cranford, J. F. Lewis, E. L. Moore and N. A. Williams, of Valdosta. The board elected the following officers: J. M. Wilkinson, D. B. Withers, vice president; W. S. West, secretary and treasurer. This is the company which has the contract for building the Florida Midland and Georgia road.

The annual report showed a balance in the hands of the treasurer. The company owes no debts, and about 55 per cent of the stock subscriptions have not been called in. About fifteen miles of the road is graded and ready for the ties. The stockholders unanimously decided to continue the work, in spite of the tightness of money.

This is an enterprise which deeply interests Valdosta and Madison, and the intermediate territory, and its promoters should meet with all possible aid and encouragement.

MRS. BORING'S DEATH.

After a Long and Painful Illness She Passes Away.

Mrs. Millie Boring, wife of Mr. Will Boring, died at her home in the northern part of the city yesterday morning.

Mrs. Boring had been ill for several weeks with pneumonia, and has been lingering between life and death for many days. She was a daughter of Mr. Manly Burney, and was about thirty-two years of age. Her father, mother and sister, Mrs. Avary Chastain, have been constantly in attendance during her illness.

Besides them she leaves a heart-broken hus-band and three little children to mourn her loss. She was a consistent and earnest Christian, and her short life was full of good and noble deeds. The funeral services will occur Sunday norning. The family has the sympathies of

Mr. Boring's afflictions are most severe. His father, Dr. J. M. Boring, has been lying very ill for several weeks, and his youngest child is so ill that its life is despaired of.

Dr. Boring was resting a little easier at a late hour, but he is still very sick. The family is worn out with watching. The Masonic fraternity appointed a committee to aid in watching by his sick bed, but the members have not been able to attend regular. The family is in need of assistance in watching, and the duty ought to be attended to at once.

testing machines scattered about the city. He was fifteen years of age, and has been for a long time employed in the job rooms of THE CONSTITUTION. He was very much beliked by all who knew him, and was a youth of fine promise.

The funeral will occur at the residence at 10 o'clock.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS To Come Up in the Trial of Cases in the Federal Courts. Some interesting questions have arisen in the efforts of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company to remove the cases of J. C. Todd and J. H. Waites from the city court to the United States court. The usual orders of removal were passed by Judge Newman, but counsel for plaintiffs, Mr. Frank Arnold, appeared before Judge Newman yesterday and argued a motion to remand the cases to the city court.

Judge Newman ordered the Todd case remanded to the city court on the ground that no case could be removed involving less than $2,000. The point in the Waites case is made on the claim of local prejudice. Judge Newman has not announced his decision yet.

Ammonia in Baking Powders From The Scientific American.

Among the discoveries in science and chemistry, none is more important than the uses to which common ammonia can be properly put as a leaven-ing agent, and which indicate that this familiar common ammonia can be properly put as a leavening agent, and which indicate that this familiar salt is hereafter to perform an active part in the preparation of our dally food.

The carbonate of ammonia is an exceedingly volatile substance. Place a small portion of it upon a knife and hold over a flame, and it will almost immediately be entirely developed into gas and pass off into the air. The gas thus formed is a simple composition of nitrogen and hydrogen, slightly aromatic, inoffensive and perfectly wholesome. No residue is left from the ammonia. This gives it its superiority as a leavening power over soda and cream of tartar used alone, and has induced its use as a supplement to these articles. A small quantity of ammonia in the dough is effective in producing bread that will be lighter, sweeter and more wholesome than that risen by any other leavening agent. When it is acted upon by the heat of baking the leavening gas that raises the dough is liberated. In this act it uses itself up, as it were; the ammonia is entirely diffused, leaving no trace or residuum whatever. The light, fluffy, flaky appearance, so desirable in biscuits, etc., and so sought after by professional cooks, is said to be imparted to them only by the use of this agent. The bakers and baking powder manufacturers producing the finest goods have availed themselves of this useful agent, and the handsomest and best bread and cake are now largely risen by the aid of carbonate of ammonia combined, of course, with other leavening material.

Ammonia is one of the best known products of the laboratory. As the application of its properties to the purposes of cooking results in giving us lighter and more wholesome bread, biscuit and cake, its general use will prove a boon to dyspeptite humanity.

THE S. T. A. DISCUSSES THE FEASI-BILITY OF ONE.

Number of Prominent Business Men to Meet this Afternoon at the Kimball and Discuss the Matter.

That is the newest scheme.

And a good deal of enthusiasm prevails among some of the leading commercial men on the subject.

The plan is to inaugurate a sort of savings nstitution, for the benefit, first of the traveling men, and as a natural consequence, for the public at large.

The plans for the bank have not been fully discussed nor settled upon, but a number of business men who understand financial maters are discussing the matter. A SUGGESTION.

A gentleman who has studied the question pretty thoroughly gives this as a suggestion: It is the desire of the association to put the frummer in a position that he will be the coming merchant; that, instead of virtually hrowing away his earnings, he may put them in something in which all are interested and which will return them handsome dividends on the investment. To do this this the proposed plan is to organize a banking capital of $1,000,000 in shares of $100 each, payable either in monthly installments of $2 each, for fifty months, or the subscriber may accept paid-up stock to the amount of subscription at once, and the dividends will be pro-rated according to the time the money has been in use. The charter will contain such provisions as will allow the bank to commence business when 10 per cent of the stock is paid in. All subscribers who make partial payments will be given scrip or receipts for amount paid in, and upon this scrip, in case of necessity, they will be able to secure loans at a reasonable rate of interest without the expense commonly incurred in negotiating small loans in cases of emergency. interest paid will return in dividends in which the holder will share with other stockholders. When the stock of the Commercial Banking Company is paid up, there can be syndicates formed and loans negotiated for money at from 3 to 4 per cent. Taking the financial situation as a criterion, with the backing of the commercial men of the south, the stock will be above par almost from the time of the first payment A MEETING THIS AFTERNOON. Pursuant to the call of those who are inter-esting themselves in the scheme, a meeting has been called at room No. 102, Kimball house, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The following gentlemen will be present at the meeting

ing gentlemen will be present at the meeting. They are among the most prominent business men of the city: Mr. Joel Hurt, Mr. John M. Green, Dr. R. D. Spalding, John A. Fitten, H. H. Cabaniss, W. A. Hansell, D. O. Dougherty, W. W. Draper, W. A. Gregg, S. F. Woodson, G.T. Dodd, J. D. Turner, Edward W. Martin, W.T. Ashford, H. T. Inman and Aaron Haas. A large delegation of the commercial travelers will be on hand, among them Messrs. E. T. Jervey, Louis Wellhouse, George P. Allen, C. J. Sullivan, N. J. Wooding, Whack Bailey, C. D. Montgomery, F. M. Perryman, C. I. Brannan, Tom W. Jackson, George W. Brooks and others of no less prominence.

If the plans are formulated and adopted, this will be an institution that will be of vast benefit, not only to Atlanta, but to the whole benefit, not only to Atlanta, but to the whole

It will, from its nature, have strong backing among the business men and the commercial travelers, and will be something unique in the way of a savings institution.

ANOTHER INTERESTING MEETING AT TRINITY YESTERDAY.

Both Among Unions and Ys, and Another Meeting this Afternoon.

There is a great revival going on among the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions of the

A number of meetings have been held recently and all of them were largely attended. Representatives from the various unions of the city held another meeting in Trinity church yesterday afternoon. Mrs. M. L. Wells, of Chattanooga, one of the national organizers, has been traveling in Georgia for a month, and at the earnest request of friends, is visiting the unions of this city.

She was present on this occasion, and after the introductory exercises, she addressed the ladies in her sweet and earnest manner, urg-ing them to systematic, persistent effort in every department of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union work.

There has always been a Woman's Christian Temperance Union department for soldiers and sailors, but which applied to the national soldiers only. The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union recently organized what is really a new department—that for southern veterans. This new department obtains favor alike both north and south, and Mrs. Wells urged the unions to appoint superintendents of this work. In connection with this subject, it was stated that the first aid given to confederate soldiers by the legislature f Georgia was through the efforts of a Woman's Christian Temperance Union lady of this city, whose facile pen has charmed the readers of THE CONSTITUTION-Mrs. B. F. Abbott. It was also stated that the Girls' Industrial chool, now located at Milledgeville, was first mentioned by the president of the Southside Union, and a petition printed and circulated by the union for its establishment. The work is flourishing, and this band of white ribboners is wielding a mighty influence for good in a quiet, womanly way, that should be encouraged by all Christian workers. Weekly meetings are held by all the unions every Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the First Baptist, Trinity and Walker Street Methodist churches.

Wonders

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, silky, and abundant, and the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff of humors. The universal testimony is that this prepared The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-turnished tailet furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recom-mend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing." — Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some time ago my wife's hair began to bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this statement before a justice of the peace."— H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa,

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my phy-sicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the market. -Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind.
